ABSTRACT

During three weeks of opportunistic collecting by the Tropical Marine Mollusc Programme identified 401 species in 96 families of molluscs in Vietnam and Cambodia. We identified 55 families (234 species) of gastropods, 36 families (144 species) of bivalves, 3 families (16 species) of cephalopods, and 2 families (3 species) of polyplacophorans. A checklist of these species is presented.

INTRODUCTION

The 10th International Congress and Workshop of the TMMP took place in northern Vietnam in 1999 (this issue p. 292). The Workshop started in Haiphong where the opening ceremony took place at the Research Institute for Marine Products (RIMP). We also had an opportunity to look at the Museum collection of RIMP. Subsequently the participants were transferred to Cat Ba Island in Halong Bay where we collected and identified shells. Later we moved to Halong City where a display of collections was made, and we continued identifying hundreds of specimens (see photos p. 520-522). About half of the species from Vietnam originated from field collections made by participants during the workshop, but I have also included shells we obtained at local fish markets, wholesale shell dealers, and most importantly specimens from areas where fishermen cleaned nets. When workshop activities ended in Halong Bay (Fig.1, area 1), most participants returned home but a smaller group travelled south to Nha Trang (Fig. 1 area 2).

In Nha Trang we conducted a training course in biodiversity of molluscs at the Research Institute for Aquaculture No. 3 (RIA 3) of the Ministry of Fisheries (this issue p. 300). Fishermen cleaned their nets just in front of RIA 3. These cleaning areas were a source of many species entangled in crab nets that were suspended in shallow water in the vicinity of the institute.

Vietnam is referred to as one area in the present overview, but it was obvious to participants that many of the species collected in northern Vietnam were absent in Nha Trang and vice versa. The paper by Lutaenko (this issue p. 347) puts emphasis on the interesting zoogeography of Vietnamese bivalves.

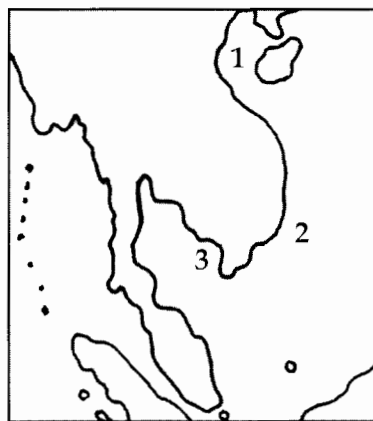

Fig. 1. Area 1 represents Halong Bay (Part of Tonkin Bay, northern Vietnam). Area 2 represents Nha Trang in Central Vietnam. Area 3 represents the Kompong Som Bay in Cambodia (in the Gulf of Thailand).

After Vietnam, the teachers transferred to Cambodia, where another training course was conducted in Sihanoukville. This activity was arranged under the auspices of the Department of Fisheries in Phnom Penh (this issue p. 306). We collected along the shores, trawled in shallow water, and we visited nearby islands using a fisheries inspection vessel put at our disposal by the Department of Fisheries (Fig. 1, area 3). Although we only spent a week in Cambodia (and much time was used in the classroom) we managed to collect about 150 species, which were identified and deposited in the newly constructed Reference Collection of the Department of Fisheries in Sihanoukville.

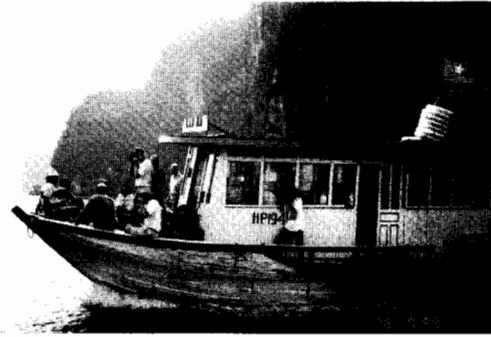

The persons who identified material in Vietnam and Cambodia were from Australia: Dr Peter Middelfart, The Australian Museum. - Belgium: Dr Bernard Tursch, University Libre, Brussel - Cambodia: Marine biologist Ing Try, Reference Collection, Sihanoukville. - Denmark: Dr Jorgen Hylleberg, University of Aarhus, Dr Kathe Rose Jensen, Zoological Museum. - France: Research Associate Jacques Vidal, Museum National d'Histoire Naturelle. - Indonesia: Docen Gustaf Mamangkey, UNSRAT, Manado, Indonesia. (the list is continued p. 525)

TRAINING COURSE IN BIODIVERSITY OF MOLLUSCS, SIHANOUKVILLE CAMBODIA

Dr Yuri Kantor carried a dissecting microscope all the way from Russia. It was used during the TMMP activities in Vietnam and Cambodia. The microscope was donated to the local Reference Collection in Sihanoukville at the end of the training course in appreciation of the co-operation with the Department of Fisheries. The microscope, together with a triangular dredge (see next page), were the first pieces of scientific equipment available for studies of the marine biodiversity of Cambodia.

- Netherlands: Dr Herman Strack, Nationaal Natuurhistorisch Museum. - Russia: Dr Yuri Kantor, Dr Konstantin Lutaenko, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow and Vladivostok respectively. - Singapore: Dr Tan Koh Siang, National University of Singapore. - South Africa: Dr Richard Kilburn, Natal Museum. - Taiwan: Dr Lu C. C., The National Chung Hsing University. - Thailand: Dr Anuwat Nateewathana, DOF Museum Division, Bangkok. Marine Biologist Vararin Vongpanich, Phuket Marine Biological Center. - UK: Dr David Reid, The Natural History Museum, London. - USA: Dr Alan Kohn, University of Washington. - Vietnam: Dr Nguyen Chinh, RIA 3, Ministry of Fisheries.

FORMAT OF THE CHECKLIST

Families of the phylum Mollusca are listed within four classes where we obtained material. Subclasses are not considered in the present list. The Checklist begins with Polyplacophora and continues with Gastropoda, Bivalvia, Cephalopoda. Families are listed in alphabetical order within each class; similarly the genera and species are listed alphabetically.

Further, the list mentions the country and the identifier. In the case of Cambodia it turned out to be impossible for Ing Try, Head of the Cambodian Reference Collection, to identify all signatures of the identifiers. Such cases are referred to as c/o.

I have provided dates for the taxa following Goto & Poppe (1996) and Millard (1997).
